2. Each militia district has a military commissariat (kara komisariats), the offices of which are in the militia offices but separate from the militia. The functions of the military commissariat are to check from time to time (approximately once a year) on the military books, which are issued to and expected to be in the possession of every male of or over military age, and to dispatch notices of call-up, registration, and medical examination for military service in their respective districts.

Administration

3. The administrative body for the city of Riga is the Riga Town Executive Committee (Rigas Pilsetas Izpildu Komiteja). Riga is divided for administrative purposes into seven districts or boroughs (rajoni), each of which is subdivided for Communist Party administration and election purposes into two or more wards (iecirkni). The division into boroughs is as follows:
